AJ Juarez was of the Ashiwee and Yeomen First Nations (Zuni and Yaqui). Poet, artist, writer, and musician, he was the founder of Noh Place Artists Cooperative and the former lead singer for The Ghost Shadows, a seminal Worcester band known for its unusual blending of jazz, heavy metal, funk, Native American songs, and rock. He was a jazz host at WCUW (91.3 FM), and his jazz poetry and artwork can be found on the Jazz History Database at www.jazzhistorydatabase.com on the "Visual Art: Jazz" page of the "Collections" section. His art work has also been used on book covers and as illustrations. In the 2018 exhibition, "A Forty Year Retrospective" at the MAP Gallery in Easthampton, MA, AJ and his visual arts mentor, Michel Duncan Merle, highlighted their collaboration as artists and poets. AJ passed away peacefully on May 23, 2024.
